MY GRANDMOTHER WAS A GENEALOGIST

An old dictionary printed in 1787, now in my possession, once belonged to Abbie G. Leake, my maternal grandmother. In it genealogy is defined as "the history of families and descendants," and a genealogist as "one who is skilled in genealogy". Fifty years or more after the death of Grandmother Leake, thanks to some Divine prompting or that I might better compete with the efforts of my wife along the same line, I became interested in the Art or Science of Genealogy. Search in the family archives at the home of my sister and elsewhere brought to light three Family Bibles, several old letters and what we call "Grandmother Leake's Document."

After studying the "Document", which consists of six pages of well written script bearing the date April 4, 1881, I am convinced she was indeed a real genealogist. It is an account of the family of her father, James Tuttle Moffatt, starting with his grandfather in Scotland, carrying on through succeeding generations in America. She signed and dated the document, gave the source of her information and, to the parts copied by her, was added the certificate of a second party, who first identified himself and then said "I do certify this is a true copy of the original now in my possession." The date and his signature followed.

Then she gave a number of tombstone inscriptions from Whippany Grave-Yard N.J. which, she said, were "copied by Adelia F. Leake on May 18, 1874." Adelia was her daughter and my own favorite Aunt.

As of possible interest to our former president Mr. Harold E. Moyer and other epitaphic friends, as well as a warning to the members of the A.Y.C. Inc. I will quote one of the inscriptions.

"My Mother Jemima. Widow of Walter Moffatt and Daughter of the late Daniel Tuttle. She died October 18, 1818 in her 63rd year."

"Here from all Earthly joys I'm fled
Into the mansions of the dead
Prepare, O Youth, for soon you must
Like me be turned into dust"

On finding in the Burton Collection a book, "Inscriptions on the Tombstones and Monuments in the Grave-Yards at Whippany and Hanover, Morris Co., N.J." 1894 my opinion of her as a genealogist was confirmed for every name and date was exactly the same as given in her report even to the epitaph quoted above.

In addition to writing her "document" she acted as Custodian of and passed on to the next generation, the Bible of Jemima (Tuttle) Moffatt, her father's mother, bearing the date 1801. To the records of the James T. Moffatt and Maria C. (Boudinot) Moffatt family there was added, in what appears to be the handwriting of this genealogist, the records of her mother's family evidently copied from the Boudinot Family Bible.

"The subject of this sketch" as we read in County Histories, preserved and handed down the Family Bible of her husband's father and mother, Benjamin and Mary Leake, and as long as her own health permitted, kept in their own Family Bible the birth, marriages and deaths of her own children and grandchildren.

Taking all of her work into consideration I think you will agree that she may well be called a "real" genealogist.

On December 29, 1879 Abbie Griffith (Moffatt) Leake, then in her sixty-sixth year wrote a letter to me, her grandson in his fifth year which closed with these words "Grandma hopes her dear little grandson will be an honorable high minded Christian Gentlemen" and I wish she might have added "and become as good a genealogist as his grandmother."

George L. Austin.

NOTES OF THE SOCIETY

The first News Letter of the recently organized Detroit Council on Local History has been received. In order that our members may know with what other organizations they are now associated we quote the final paragraph of the letter: "The Detroit Council on Local History is now fully organized and functioning. At the last meeting several committees were appointed to investigate certain problems in the study of local history and report the results of their investigations at the regular May meeting. At present the council is composed of eleven organizations. The organizations and their representatives are: Algonquin Club, William F. Lawler; Gabriel Richard Society, James E. Fraser; Aboriginal Research Club, George W. Needels; Sons of the American Revolution, Marquis Shattock; Detroit Institute of Technology, F. Clever Bald; University of Detroit, Francis A. Arlinghaus; Detroit Historical Society, Thomas M. Starr; Detroit Society for Genealogical Research, Clarence R. Martin; Detroit Public Library, Miss C. B. Kram; Wayne University, Joe L. Norris; Detroit Science Research Council, Raymond C. Miller." Our Society is well represented.

At the February meeting the Society enjoyed a very entertaining and thought-provoking talk by Mr. E. A. McFaul, the well-known and well-liked radio commentator. His subject, "Plymouth Rock and Ellis Island", is of interest to all of us whether our ancestors happened to be early or late arrivals in America.

We note with interest that both our neighbors of Royal Oak and Highland Park have recently organized a Historical Society. We are glad to see the interest in Michigan history growing.

Mrs. Z. R. Peterson has a list of 2130 Heads of Families copied from the Federal Census of 1850 for Murray County, Georgia by her friend Mrs. F. M. Herron Sr. of Dalton, Georgia. This includes Whitfield County, Georgia which was taken from Murray County in 1851. Mrs. Peterson will be glad to let anyone interested look over the list.

Through Prof. William Langworthy of Hamilton, N. Y., we have now a complete file of the "Langworthy Chronicle."

The following item from the Exeter News-Letter, Exeter, New Hampshire issue of Dec. 28, 1939, under "Rockingham's Families" will be of interest to everyone who is a student in any way of Michigan's History: "Rockingham is informed that a new history of the life of Exeter's distinguished son General Lewis Cass is to be written by a historian of the state of Michigan, where General Cass made his home during the maturer years of his life. In the War of 1812 Cass distinguished himself as a soldier and during later years placed himself in the front rank as a statesman. He as will be remembered received the nomination of the Democratic party as the 12th candidate for President. Although he carried his native state, he was defeated by Zachary Taylor." Note: Exeter is located in Rockingham Co., N. H.

An interesting series of articles on the history of the church in Detroit has been appearing in the Saturday edition of the Detroit News. Many phases of the life of the early city are related.

The Detroit Public Library in which the Society is happy to have its home will celebrate its 75th anniversary this month for "on Mar. 25, 1865 the library was formally opened to the public in rooms on the first floor of the old capital building." Details of the celebration have not been announced at this writing.

An even hundred present at the February meeting, 83 members, 17 guests.

VITAL RECORDS FROM "THE DETROIT GAZETTE" 1817-1830
 Collected by Beulah Puffer Kresge

Dec. 29, 1820. (Friday) In this city, on Sunday evening last by the Rev. Mr. Monteith, Mr. David Cooper to Miss Lovicy Mack.

-----On Monday last by the same, Capt. Henry Whiting, of the 5th Reg't to Miss Eliza Macomb.

-----On the same day, Lieut. Aeneas Mackay, Corps of Artillery to Miss Ann Maconb.

DEATHS RECORDED IN 1820.

Jan. 7, 1820. At Amherstburg, U.C. Col. John Askin, of the Indian Department. He was much esteemed by those who had the pleasure of his acquaintance.

April 14, 1820. Death of Com. Decatur. - A duel was fought on Wednesday morning March 22 near Bladenburg (Md.), between the victor of the Macedonian Commodore Decatur, and Commodore Barron, who commanded the Chesapeake Frigate when she was overhauled by the British ship Leopard. They fought at 8 paces with pistols ---at the first fire both were wounded --- Com. Decatur through the abdomen of which he died at half past ten o'clock in the evening, and Com. Barron severely on the right hip, the ball glancing from the bone, which probably saved his life, though it is said he is dangerously injured. Com. Bainbridge was the second of Decatur and Capt. Elliot, of the navy of Barron. --- Com. Decatur was carried to his own house in Washington city --- in the arms of Com. Rodgers, where he expired --- The difference is supposed to have had its origin in an old quarrel ---probably as old as the affair of the Chesapeake --- His remains were interred on the Friday following. -Niles Register.

May 5, 1820. (Friday) We have this week the melancholy duty of recording the loss to the army of a distinguished and valuable officer, and to this community of a much respected member.

Last Wednesday morning, Capt. John Farley, of the U. S. Corps of Artillery and Lieut. Otis Fisher, of the 5th Reg't of Infantry, accompanied by their seconds met a short distance below Sandwich, and the recontre took place, in which the latter was instantaneously killed. The ball of his antagonist entered a little above his heart.

Lieut. Fisher had long been stationed at this post, was extensively known among our citizens, and was very generally esteemed. His remains were yesterday deposited, with the honors of war in the military burial ground; to which place they were accompanied by a numerous procession composed of the military at this post and a large number of citizens.

It was unfortunate that the secrecy with which the preparatory arrangements were made, defeated the vigilance of the civil authority, the meeting was expected by some, but an opinion had been induced that it was deferred for some time.

----- At Sandwich in Upper Canada, on the 3rd instant, Lieut. Otis Fisher, of the 5th Reg't Infantry; who fell a victim to those false notions of honor which have recently deprived our country of so many valuable officers and citizens. Mr. Fisher was an officer of much merit and served his country in the late war with Great Britain with distinguished reputation. In the glorious battle of Bridgewater, on the Niagara frontier, he lost an arm and he was just about retiring from the army to enjoy the consideration to which his services entitled him.

At Michillimackinac. On the 27th March last, Brevet Captain Gleason of the same regiment. He served during the late war with great credit and received a brevet for his gallantry and good conduct in the campaign of 1814, on the Niagara frontier.

Arkansas March 25. A duel was fought on the 10th inst. in the vicinity of this village, between Gen. William O. Allen a member of the legislature from this county, and Robert C. Oden Esq. On exchanging a shot the gentlemen each received a severe wound which has since proved fatal to Gen. Allen.

July 14 1820. At Colchester, Essex county U.C. last fall Mr. Thomas Harper in the 43d year of his age. He was from Gettysburgh (Pa.).

July 21 1820. Chillicothe July 6. Distressing Accident. On Thursday the 22d ult. as Gen. John Williamson of Lancaster was returning from his farm in company with one of his workmen a violent thunderstorm arose which obliged them to take shelter under a large chestnut tree by the roadside. In a few minutes the lightning descended struck the tree and instantaneously killed the General and his horse which he was holding by the bridle. The workman was also struck and remained sometime senseless. He however recovered and ran to procure assistance but the vital spark was fled forever. Gen. Williamson was highly esteemed and has left an affectionate wife and a large circle of friends to deplore his untimely fate. Gazz.

On the 19th of June Richard Stuart and Townsend S. Dade both of King George county Virginia bear relatives and neighbors in consequence of a quarrel arising from a mere trifle loaded their muskets with buck shot and sent each other into eternity.

Aug. 4 1820. Last evening between 8 and 9 o'clock this place was visited by a severe storm of wind and rain accompanied by vivid lightning and thunder. During the storm a Mrs. McPherson who resided a short distance above the city was killed by lightning.

Sept. 22 1820. At Mount Clemens, Sept. 12 1820 Mary Creighton Stockton daughter of Major John Stockton aged four months and eleven days.

On the 15th inst. near Detroit Mr.---- Norris aged about 30 years. The parents of the deceased live in Hollowell in the state of Maine.

Oct. 6 1820. In this city last evening, Mr. Peter Audrian Register of the Land Office for the District of Detroit an aged and respectable citizen.

By the schr. Commodore Perry (arrived yesterday) the editor received a letter from Green Bay which states that two murders had recently been committed by the Indians in that quarter. A Frenchman by the name of Ulrick was stabbed near the Portage at the Ouisconsin. The Indian (a Menominee) who murdered Ulrick made his escape but several warriors of the tribe had gone in pursuit of him. The particulars of the murder of Grignon had not reached Green Bay when the Com. Perry sailed.

A DEVOL FAMILY LINEAGE
By Elbert E. Boyd.

(Editor's Note: A manuscript copy of the Devol family lineage of his mother, Lucetta Fuller Devol, has been given to the Detroit Society for Genealogical Research by Mr. E. E. Boyd. In publishing it, we are omitting a small part which may be found readily elsewhere and rearranging slightly to avoid some répétition. The manuscript will be placed in the Society's files.)

The Devol family in the United States numbers many thousands, and throughout their history the name has been spelled in about twenty-five or thirty different ways. At the present time the spellings most used are Devol, Devoll, Davol, Deuell or Deuel.

1. William Davol (1) first appears in American history at Duxbury Mass. Aug. 3 1640 when he applied for a parcel of land. He is believed to be the William Devel who was married in Spalding, Lincolnshire England in 1639 (Lincoln Parish Registers Vol. 1 p. 43 edited by Phillimore and Maples), but his wife's name is not known. Holmes' "Directory of Ancestral Heads of New England Families" says the name Davol (in its various spellings) is of French origin, derived from Deyville, a village or district, in France, anglicised from the name David.

The following is a copy of a memorandum received from the executor of the estate of George Devol Brielle N.J. November 1933.

Dayville's Original House (or Home) Alawson Normandie. de Deivel d Eivell (Sir Goseleine) and his bro. Robert hanged at York 1311.
John de Eiville Yorkshire, son of Gocelin 1257.
Walter Barbatus Lord of Daiville witnessed the charter of Treport 1056.
Walter de Daiville his son, accompanied the Conqueror Castle at the Hode Yorkshire.

William Davol (1) was living at Newport R.I. in 1681. (See Austin's "Genealogical Dictionary of Rhode Island".) He had four sons as follows:

1 2 John Davol b Jun. 24, 1643, d Jul. 1643.
2 2 Joseph Davol d Feb. 1, 16. M. (1) Mary Brayton, (2) Elizabeth----, (3) Emily b 1665 - d 1712 (as per old burial ground at Stonington Conn.), (4) Elizabeth, d after 1716. Had three children:

1 3 Mary Davol, m Mar. 18, 1689, James Tallman. Had three children:
1 4 John Tallman, b Sept. 19, 1692
2 4 Joseph Tallman, b July 13, 1694
3 4 Elizabeth Tallman, b June 13 1699
2 3 William Davol, b Westerly, R.I.; d 1719, m Elizabeth, d after 1722
1 4 William Davol, b Aug. 2 1698
3 3 Joseph Davol, m June 29, 1705, Elizabeth Yeomans, widow.

There is no further record of the descendants of Joseph Davol.

3 2 Benjamin Davol. Austin's Genealogy says he married Elizabeth Peabody but E. Russel Davol, Taunton, Mass. (1931) says that New Jersey records show that Benjamin had a wife Judith in 1693.

No further record of this family. All known descendants of William (1) Davol are through the fourth son, Jonathan.

4 2 Jonathan Davol, b Dartmouth, Mass. or Newport R.I., was living 1737. He married (1) Hannah Adley (Adlin Audlyn Audley Odlih) dau of John Odlin '1 b 1602 d Dec. 18 1685. He married (2) 1731 Martha Spooner Wing of Rochester Mass., daughter of William Spooner and widow of John Wing. Had eleven children by first wife 1. Jonathan some of whose descendants are traced through the 19th century, 2. Joseph who is the ancestor of all the Ohio Devols, and whose line continues to the present time, 3. Benjamin, 4. Jeremiah, 5. Mary, 6. William, ancestor of present day Davols of New England, 7. Anna, 8. Hannah, 9. Atigail, 10. Sarah, 11. Elizabeth.

John Odlin (1) father of Hannah Adley Davol was a tanner and armorer and one of the more wealthy citizens of Boston. John Perry Taylor A.M. of Exeter, N.H. has written a book, "The Odlin Family" part of which is reprinted in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Vol. 4 p. 265 (1881).

Information concerning the second marriage of Jonathan Davol (2) was received from E. Russel Davol, Taunton, Mass., Dec. 1931 and from "The Owl", magazine of the Wing Family, page 1648.

Many descendants of Jonathan Davol (2) through his sons Jonathan (3), Joseph (3) and Jeremiah (3) were in Dutchess County, New York before, during and after the Revolution, and some were there, at Pine Plains in 1897 (See "History of Little Nine Partners", published 1897). The spelling of the name of those who moved to New York State was changed to Deuel or Deuel.

A GLIMPSE BEYOND THE GANG-PLANK
by Elijah H. Owen.

Some people, you know, advocate "stopping at the gang-plank" when tracing one's ancestry. This is a narrow view point, whether the immigrant arrived in America in 1620 or 1820. Who were his people and how did they live? Why did he leave his native soil? Any facts that can be obtained covering one or more generations before the migration are often illuminating. Had the descendants of "James Davids" who died in New Haven in 1689, been content to stop at the sea-board in the backward search for items of family history they would have missed this rare gem:

"The xx day of Desseember 1555 was tered at sant Donstones in the Es^t master HARE HERDSON altherman of London and skynner and on of the masturs of the hos· petall of the gray frers in London with men and xxiiij women in mantyll fresse gownes, a hersse of wax, and hong with tlake, and ther was my lord mayre and the swordterer in tlake, and dyvers odur althermen in tlake and the resedew of the aldermen, at ys beryng; and all the masters boþt altherman and odur with their gren stauffes in thetz handes, and all the chylderyn of the gray frersse, and iiij men in blake gownes bawryng iiij gret stauffes torchys borryng and then xxiiij men with borwys borryng, and the morwe iij masses songe, and after to ys plasse to dener; and ther was ij goodly why, branchys and mony prestes and clarkeſ syng· yng". (Machyn's Diary)

"James Davids" was the "hide-out" name of Col. John Dixwell of Kent, one of the so-called "regicides" of Charles I of England beheaded for his sins in 1649. Tyrannicides is a better designation for these benefactors of mankind. The best that could ever be found to say of Charles was that he was a good father to his children so quite naturally when Charles II came to the throne he had little accounts to settle with each and every member of Cromwell's Rump Parliament who had signed the death warrant some twenty-odd years before.

Col. Dixwell's American neighbors respected his evident desire to remain incognito. What they did not know they did not have to divulge to any prying king's agent who might descend upon the little Connecticut town. When he died he left a silversnuff-box engraved with the family arms and papers which proved his descent and his claim to estates in England. These can be seen at the New Haven Colony Historical Society's building. (See Vol. VI of the Society's Papers-1900). Center Church on the east and old Yale on the west stand guard at his last resting place.

Dixwell's grandmother was Abigail Herdson, daughter of HENRY(Hare) HERDSON, alderman of London whose funeral is so graphically described in the Diary of Henry Machyn, citizen of London, covering the years 1550-1563, printed for the Camden Society in 1848 a copy of which is to be found in the Detroit Library.

In this diary appear account after account of funerals of worthies of the city, interspersed with parades of gayer hue, such as the Fishmongers procession May 13, 1554 ---" and so folchyngh my lord mayre and the althermen in skarlet---". Aside from the Englishman's inherent love for pomp and ceremony, why this great interest in funerals on the part of our friend Machyn? Ah, here's the answer. He was a tailor and derived considerable business in the making of mourning gownes, pennons, and other trappings for each occasion. Picture him sitting on his table, his needle flying as he barked orders to his apprentices to hurry, hurry, until many a finger was pricked in the endeavor to get the gownes of coarse, woolen, mantle-frieze ready for the event. As the mourners were allowed to keep the gownes for their own use, it had to be done all over again for the next important funeral whereby many a "thrip-pence" (or whatever they used for money in those days) found in's way into his money bags.

The rush over he could repair to the church(St. Dunstans in the East in this case hard by London Bridge and the Tower) attend the ceremonies admiring the while his own handiwork draped about the shoulders of the aldermen and masters or adorning the hearse of wax. What would the hearse look like without the trappings upon which he had labored so feverishly? Just a canopy of timber spanning above the coffin. But with his masterpieces embroidered drapes the little flags with "skew byrons" bearing the various heraldic devices so necessary to properly honor this important personage why a wax chandler could take a vacation as far as he was concerned. Of different mind was the master chandler. Did they not call it a "herse of wax"? Surely so many candles were the best part of the show.

Later came the big dinner at the Herdson home and these dinners were worth attending. What if Dame Machyn did so old when he came home late and perhaps a bit unsteadily? He would console her with a vivid account of the great event. Then perhaps late into the night he would ply the quill diligently, though his letter half dulled him a little. How fortunate that there have been loons who wrote diaries.

Harrie Herdson was a skinner-dealer in skins, pelts and hides. The Guild of Skinners is one of the oldest and richest of the guilds of London. Although not specifically mentioned in this account, doubtless many of the skinners were present.

What is meant by "Children of the Grey Friars"? The hospital of the Grey Friars, later Christ's Hospital was a school founded in 1552 on the site of an ancient monastery of the Grey Friars, by the city, with the assistance of the boy-king, Edward VI, to serve for all the fatherless children of London, "to take the childe out of the strete, which was the seede and increase of beggary by reason of yde bringing up and to noryshe the same chylde in some good learning and exercise profitable to the common weale." If all the children were at this funeral as Machyn states, we can picture quite a number present, for they were first taken into the Hospital three years before "to the numbre of fower hundred". This account does not state whether the children were draped in "blake" or not. Their usual costume seems to have been, according to other descriptions by Machyn, "blaw Garmen-tes (for) boith men chylderyn and woen chylderyn" with escutcheons embroidered on their sleeves with the Arms of London, and red caps on their heads.

Many, many years later we find this school still flourishing, some of the pupils having been prepared for a university career. Among the celebrated men educated here were William Camden, S.T. Coleridge, Charles Lamb and Leigh Hunt. Baedeker says that the school itself was moved in 1902 to Horsham in Sussex, where the "Blue Coat Boys" still wore the original costumes - long blue gowns, yellow stockings and knee breeches, but no head covering, even in winter.

Machyn never seems to have failed to mention the green "staffes" in the hands of the Masters of the school-their badge of office. He also at times refers to gifts for the children, as at the burial of Master John Heth Mar. 22, 1553 "and ther went a ffor hym a C. chylderyn of Gray-freres boys and gyrlies ij and ij (to-) gether, and he gayff them shurts and smokes, and gyrdulls, and moketors; ...". Did the deceased come to life to make the presentations? Or can we assume that he left instructions for someone else to distribute these useful gifts? "Smokes", let us hasten to explain, did not refer to cigarettes, but to smocks, and "moketors" is to be translated pocket-handkerchiefs.

Why stop at the gang-plank, or "salt-water", as some express it, when you might find interesting and amusing accounts of the life, or death, of an ancestor like the above?

561-E-5; ELLWOOD AND CAMERON FAMILIES: Desire descendants of Sarah Ellwood who m ----Cameron. She was dau of James and Fanny (Stephens, Stevens) Ellwood, and was b near Ballymena, Ireland. She and her sister Annie came to this country in the 1840's. Annie m William Quirk. First child b 1849 or 50. A sister, Margaret, came to America, possibly 1855 or 56, m William Carbine and went to Chicago in 1857. Sarah lived at Newberg-on-the-Hudson. Her dau m McPeek (MacPeek).

562-E 5. WILLSEY and WOODBECK (Witbeck, Widbeck, Whitbeck) FAMILIES: John Willsey is supposed to have m a dau of the Woodbeck family. One of her daughters named a son Woodbeck. They were living in Albany County when one, at least, of their daughters was born. Their children, from family tradition, were as follows (order not known): Katherine m Bert Stevens (or Stephens); Temperance E. b Oct. 20 1821 in Albany Co. N.Y., m Julius Quirk; Cornelia b Jan. 14 1820, m 1st Isaac Quirk, 2nd --- Lynch; Caroline m Hiram Cornelius Bert (Or Burt); Hamilton. Either of these sons may have had sons Barnet and Spencer.

John Willsey was in the Ithaca region before 1836. No mention of his wife. He moved with his dau., Katherine Stevens, to North Central Illinois and was seen there in 1863 by a dau of Temperance b 1858. There is a tradition of a kinship with Gov. Daniel D. Tompkins of New York. John Willsey had a bro. Simon Peter who m Janet Hall (d 1880 age 69). Simon Peter d 1876 aged 65. They are buried in the Houghtonville Cemetery south of Richford, N.Y. 499 M-12; LARNED: George B. Larned died at Detroit, Jan. 27, 1825. (Detroit Gazette, Jan. 28, 1825.) Protestants of Detroit used the burial ground on the northeast corner of Woodward Ave. and Larned until 1827. (Burton's City of Detroit, p.1428.) A number of references to George B. Larned are to be found in Burton manuscript index. Ans. by K-1.

500 M-12; PORTER: The city of Detroit purchased the Guion farm May 31, 1834, and this became the Russell Street Cemetery. "A portion of the front of this farm was laid off for immediate use and burials ceased to take place in the other cemeteries." (Burton's City of Detroit, p.1429.) "A plan of the grounds was adopted on September 30, 1835 and price of lots was fixed." (Farmer's History of Detroit and Wayne Co., p.55) A grandson of Gov. George Bryan Porter, Oliver Phelps Sr., is a resident of Detroit and may be able to supply the correct information as to his burial place. Ans. by K-1.

393 M-5; GREEN: William (1) Green, of Groton, Mass., b abt.1644 (death unknown) had w Mary ----. Issue: William(2) b 1665, Ann; John; ELEAZER(2) b 1672; Elizabeth and Hannah(twice). William(2)Green m June 20, 1705 Mary Barron(issue incomplete). However, the History of Jaffrey N.H. states that William(3) was a son of William(2). That is wrong, because William(3) d "May 7th 1778 in 80th yr." placing his birth at abt. 1699 being five years earlier than the marriage of William(2). As a correction, Austin W. Green of Edgewood R.I., writes that the will of ELEAZER(2) mentions a William(3), and that William(3) (with w Hannah Holden) was actually the son of Eleazer(2) (with w Elizabeth Prescott), through William(1) Green and w Mary ----. Ans. by M-5.

534-535-536-537-C-14; CRITTENDEN: B-7, reports that she has some Crittenden records which include a John Crittenden of Guilford, Conn. b 5-1672; d 5-16-1751, m 5-6-1703 Bathsheba Johnson, dau of Isaac Johnson and Mary Bishop of Guilford, Mass. b 7-20-1683, d 4-25-1752. Seven children. Their son, Isaac, b 4-3-1720, Guilford, Conn., d 7-13-1796, m Lucy Benton, 1-25-1743. Six children.

While none of the names mentioned in the queries appear in these records, two towns of Guilford are mentioned, one in Conn. and one in Mass. It may be the same town before and after State or Colony lines were fixed.

A little paper "Family Tidings" pub at Howell, Michigan, by A. Riley Crittenden, contains numerous Crittenden, Cruttenden families of early date. A cousin of B-7, at Dowagiac, Michigan, has two numbers. Vol. 1. Nos. 2-3, April, May, 1912. If this paper is not in the Burton Collection, B-7 will borrow it for use of C-14. Her records may also be consulted.

Among the notes, in a reference taken from "The History of Ashfield" is a military record of one Amos Crittenden: "Ent.5-27-1775; service 3 mo. 11 da. Was also in Arnold's Expedition to Canada, and was taken and held prisoner in Quebec."

Mrs. Z. R. Peterson ("The Lincoln Lineage" - D.S.G.R. magazine Feb. 1940) may be interested to know that a Miss Hanks, a relative of the Nancy Hanks - Lincoln families, lives here in Detroit. Mrs. John Fox Morris, Puritan and St. Marys Ave. could provide Miss Hanks address.

We are all omnibusses in which our ancestors ride, and every now and then one of them sticks his head out and embarrasses us.
